VOL. XVII. MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1920 No. 3

RIPTON INVADED BY PLEASURE SEEKERS

425 From College Visit Tourist's Mecca in Green Mountains

Vast Estate Was Given to Middlebury by Joseph Battell

Staid, reserved, and dozing Ripton, the recently adopted seat of the English School of the Summer Session of Middlebury College awoke with a jolt early Friday morning. At this time the advance guard of Middlebury's army of 425 pleasure-seekers in the first of the College's pilgrimages to Bread Loaf Inn and mountain invaded the highways and byways of that worthy village which when this year subjected to its decennial nose counting registered a grand total of 50-odd inhabitants.

Favored by weather conditions which were ideal, college student and faculty member discarded the conventional mufti for the more appropriate khaki and for a period of thirty-six hours made pleasure-hunting their sole concern. Bread Loaf Inn, a development of the late Joseph Battell benefactor of Middlebury and to whom it is indebted for this acquisition as that of 30,000 acres of virgin forest land, became the immediate center of all activity. Radiating from this axis squad after squad of college folk tramped up and down the surrounding countryside, climbed mountain elevations and altogether exhaustively explored the wonderland with which Nature has endowed Middlebury.

The Inn became the immediate possessor of every ear-mark of the modern summer resort. In this and adjoining buildings rooming accommodations were provided for practically all of the 425 registered pilgrims. In cases where a preference was evidenced for the open air, male sojourners forsook the several commodious dwellings, hay mows or side piazzas reserved for them and derived a taste of real "camp life" by sleeping about an immense bonfire. The culinary arrangements were efficiently supervised by directors of the college eating halls, Mrs. M. O. Mason and Mrs. Kate Mills. It has been announced that 422 guests were served in the spacious dining hall of the Inn. Transportation of all baggage was provided by the College and members of the party were carried as far as East Middlebury in motor trucks.

Every one of the unlimited recreational advantages of the Inn was placed at the disposal of guests. Throughout the two-day period the visitors showed little partiality between the dance hall, bowling alley or croquet court. On Friday evening members of the recently organized quintet of musicians and other volunteers furnished music for seventy-five couples.

In the impromptu games directed by Professor P. C. Voter, Miss Marion Young and other members of the faculty Friday afternoon representatives of the Class of 1921 had little difficulty in carrying away first honors. Firsts were taken by them in two events, the Suit Case and Potato races and a second in Dodge Ball. In order of points scored the other classes were: freshmen second with 8, sophomores third with 6 and juniors fourth with 5.

Silent Cliff, situated on Bread Loaf Mountain where there is an abrupt drop of 1000 feet was visited by practically the entire company early Saturday morning. The elevation furnishes

PROF. WILLIAMSON DE VISME MADE KNIGHT OF THE FRENCH LEGION OF HONOR

Native of Middlebury and Dean of College French School Receives Coveted Decoration

Delayed nearly two months pending final confirmation from the office of the French consulate in New York City announcement of the awarding of the Cross of the French Legion of Honor to Professor Henri Pierre Williamson de Visme, of the Department of French in Middlebury College, was made Friday. "For signal service in the cause of French education" reads the official notification which was recommended by the Minister of Education of the French Cabinet and which bears the signature of ex-President Paul Deschanel.

Initiation ceremonies which will occur in Middlebury in the near future will probably be presided over by the French Ambassador or if that post remain vacant for any length of time, by Consul-General Gaston Liebert, who delivered an address at the Commencement exercises here in June.

Professor de Visme was born on Seymour street, Middlebury, August 20, 1874, the son of Abraham and Gertrude Sophia (Parker) Williamson. Early in his boyhood days the now Chevalier de Visme, lecturer and dean, and founder of the first American school for the training of teachers of French, gave evidence of the precocity in modern language study that forecasted his rapid rise in this department of instruction.

Having prepared for college in the local high school Professor de Visme entered Middlebury in 1892, graduating four years later with the degree of Bachelor of Science. He returned the following year for graduate study and in 1897 was granted the degree of Master of Arts.

Professor de Visme's career as a teacher of French has been characterized by repeated successes. One year after his departure from Middlebury he received an appointment to the faculty of Princeton which he resigned somewhat later to accept a similar position at Chicago University.

In 1912, following repeated visits to that country and a thorough study of its language, history and customs, he founded at Soisy-sous Etiolles in the department of the Seine et Oise, France, the famous school for advanced study which has become a model of its kind. Here, during the comparatively brief period of his directorship, Professor de Visme saw an enrollment increase of five hundred per cent, his pupils including sons of

ARMY DOWNS MIDDLEBURY 27-0

Three Scores on Straight Plunges--- One Follows Fumble

Blue Misses Two Chances to Score in Final Period

West Point took no chances after the news of Middlebury's scoreless tie with Springfield and sent her first thereby securing a result disappointing team in for the entire game Saturday but by no means disheartening to supporters of the Blue. Four times the Middlebury goal line was crossed by the Cadets for touchdowns with but one trial for goal after touchdown a success. That Middlebury went down fighting is well vouched for in the press reports and the knowledge of the odds which they were up against and the good showing they made. Three times the Army goal line was threatened but the breaks went the other way each time. Three of the Army's touchdowns resulted from straight line plunging and the fourth was the result of a recovered fumble. Middlebury resorted more to the passing game than she had in the games to date and was in a fair measure successful. The injuries received by Keppler, Leonard and Lobo are not permanent and as the return of Gollnick to the squad is expected within a few days the eleven should be ready for the Boston University game this Saturday in full strength.

Middlebury received in the first quarter and opened up with a passing game which failed to gain much at this point. Leonard and Lobo were both injured in this period and Stockwell replaced Lobo at full while Leonard was able to stay in the game at quarter. The first Army score resulted from straight line bucking up the field from the 45-yard line for a touchdown.

Two more touchdowns resulted in the second quarter for the West Pointers. The first came after an exchange of punts left the ball on Middlebury's 30-yard line and it went over on straight bucks. The second came after Middlebury lost the ball on a fumble. A combination of a 20-yard gain by a lateral pass and another gain of the same distance by a clever piece of open field running by Captain Wilhide put the ball on Middlebury's 7-yard line where it was finally put across though in the face of strong resistance.

The final score came in the third period when a fumbled punt permitted the Army to recover and score on the same play. Middlebury uncorked a good passing game in this period but failed to score. The penalties were heavy in this quarter and kept both sides from benefiting much from the ground gained by actual play.

Middlebury had two chances to score in the final quarter. Stockwell's drop-kick from the 25-yard line was blocked, but on the next play Drost intercepted a pass with a clear field ahead of him only to be tackled from behind and Middlebury's last chance to score was lost.

Uniqueness characterized every detail of the college outing at Bread Loaf mountain last week,—uniqueness and thoroughness of foresight and preparation which were equally responsible for its striking success. To no such extent does any other American college possess the natural means for a like venture as does Middlebury and no other institution could have better availed itself of these opportunities. There were no hitches in the carrying out of plans. The element of complication did not enter in. Satisfaction was everywhere manifest—the contrary was conspicuously non-existent.

The Battell Forest, comprising thirty thousand acres of virgin timberland, places Middlebury in the forefront of American colleges with respect to the material and scenic values of her land holdings. What worthier motive than that of introducing the active representatives of Middlebury College to the limitless resources of such a possession could then be devised for sending four hundred and twenty-five undergraduates and members of the faculty to this natural wonderland for a period of two days?

The excursion accomplished this and more. Middlebury is one of a rapidly diminishing number of higher educational institutions that have within themselves the facilities for cultivating a strong fellowship between student and faculty member and between one student and another. These facilities are found in a self-dependent college body, in small classes and in the common run of campus activities of a populace whose interests are for the most part subject to a strong centralizing influence. At Bread Loaf this populace met on common ground. Faculty mingled with student in a manner that accentuated a mutual feeling of confidence and respect. Such mingling inflicted no loss of dignity upon the body to whom it is essential. Instead, it added a block to the pillar of cooperation and of progress in the furtherance of common aims in this institution.

Middlebury College has done well to make such profitable use of inherent advantages. In doing this she has amply demonstrated that every advantage obligates utilization. The administrative agencies in the two colleges are to be congratulated for the triumph of new and opportune methods over the obsolete which they have effected this year. It is to be hoped that such a signal triumph will not be obscured with time but that its features may be incorporated in the receptions of succeeding first-year classes into this institution.

Mahomet Comes to the Mountain

A final statement regarding the 1920-21 Entertainment Course offered by Middlebury College is made elsewhere in these columns. Tickets for the entire course, comprising four concerts and one lecture, will first be offered on sale Saturday, the price having been fixed at five dollars.

There must be no mistaking of the purpose of the Student Life Committee in offering a program which includes only the representatives of highest achievement in each individual art. It is not a money-making scheme. The charge to be made is no criterion of value. Middlebury will hear artists who have never before appeared in this state because of a generous appropriation made for this purpose by the Board of Trustees. In any of the large musical centers admission to a single entertainment of the quality offered by the Student Life Committee could be obtained only through payment of a sum equal to that fixed by them for the entire season.

The Board of Trustees has been influenced by a consideration for the disadvantages incurred by Middlebury through her remoteness from larger musical centers which naturally forbid attendance at such exemplary exhibitions. By so liberally subsidizing the work of the resident committee this body has made possible the engagement of leading artists for the season while to such an extent limiting the charge as in no quarter to make it prohibitive. Under these circumstances the Student Life Committee is both desiring and anticipating a 100 per cent subscription by students. Failing in this endeavor the committee will be obliged to turn to hundreds of waiting outsiders. Being thus cognizant of whys and wherefores will the undergraduate public avail itself of an uncommon privilege next Saturday?

'71. Dr. Francis B. Denio, Professor Emeritus of Bangor Theological Seminary, delivered the opening address at that institution on October 7. His subject was "The Influence of Greek and Hebrew in the Revival of Learning".

The Periscope

We really had every honest intention of sleeping out around the camp-fire Friday night, but when we found a nice, downy, snowy white, double bed in Maple Inn unoccupied, save for four or five others, we strangely began to think less and less of our original plans.

A bell on an recalcitrant cow and a fit of sneezing by one of the inmates destroyed our equanimity but after all we spent a very pleasant and comfortable (?) night and can only hope that the other three or four with us fared as well.

Some day we are going to write a complete account of that night's rest and publish it in book form. We are open to suggestions as to what to call that book but just now we rather think that "Three Men in a Bed; or Sympathize With the Sardine" makes a peculiarly apt and fitting title.

When we went after wood for the fire and saw our w. k. ed.-in-chief struggling with a fence plank, we hastened to his assistance in order that we might give opportunity to the mad wags in our midst to point out "The Campus Board" to the unsuspecting and innocent.

We heard at least five or six of the keen-witted respond and felt that our labor had not been in vain.

Bread Loaf Crumbs

At one time we were fearful lest part of The Campus Board might get her feet wet while cruising on Lake Pleiad.

"Ike" Hulihan has been recommended to Dean Bonney to act on the reception committee at the next college function. Prof. Bonny is withholding notice of his acceptance of the offer.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the kind-hearted pilgrims, one and all, who ate the doughnuts, cakes, etc., we so carefully carried up from Bread Loaf to Lake Pleiad.

Ann Clark '20 Saturdayed in our busy midst.

Uncle Joe Calvi made several motor trips out to the Inn. He reported with tears in his eyes that Middlebury seemed awfully deserted.

At one time it was rumored that two barrels of cider had been sent up to the Inn. We are mildly curious as to what finally happened to the two barrels last seen being loaded on the wagon for Bread Loaf.

We thought that the trip was booked as a Pilgrimage to Silent Cliff but some of our members evidently found the cliff too crowded and made individual pilgrimages (in pairs) to the "Shrine of Apthrodite."

We feel that we must caution the pilgrims that in writing to fond parents of their adventures and the miles they walked it is only fair to admit that in all cases the "Annanias Pedometer" was used.

It was the first time we ever took a coed to dinner and came away with as much money as we had when we entered the dining hall. Therefore we can truthfully say that the bracing mountain air was not the sole cause of our ravenous appetite.

We Lost Count After Fifty

Sir:—How often did you hear this? He: "Isn't it a beautiful view?" She: "Yes, wonderful day, don't you think?"

M. T. Head

We hope that next time we make the trip on foot from Bread Loaf to East Middlebury the Ripton General Store will have in its annual supply of fresh cookies.

OBITUARY

CHARLES D. PILLSBURY '82

Word has been received of the recent death of Charles D. Pillsbury '82, for many years Deputy City Attorney of Los Angeles, Cal., at his home in that city.

Mr. Pillsbury was born 59 years ago in Wooster, O. He was the oldest deputy in point of service in the office of the City Attorney of Los Angeles. He was considered a specialist on legal matters pertaining to widening and opening of streets and other branches of municipal improvement works and was widely known among real estate and municipal improvement bond men in Southern California.

Mr. Pillsbury was married to Martha Gerrish Chamberlain, September 13, 1888, who survives him. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

REV. G. E. CADY '93

Rev. Gilbert E. Cady, '93 an uncle of Professor F. W. Cady of the department of English at Middlebury, died October 4, at the Methodist Hospital in New York City following an operation for appendicitis.

Rev. Cady entered college in 1889 from Beaman Academy, Poultney, Vt., and graduated four years later with the degree of A. B. He was pastor successively of the Methodist church in East Middlebury, Bridport and Lincoln from 1894 until 1898. In this year he was ordained and accepted a call from Benson, Vt., later going to Bristol and certain New York communities until 1915 when he moved to Chazy, N. Y.

On March 25, 1895 he was married to Lillace H. Meader who survives him as do his two children, Howard M., and Marjorie D. He was a member of Delta Upsilon Fraternity.

PIERCE W. DARROW '10

Announcement was erroneously made by The Campus last week of the death of G. M. Darrow of the class of 1910. Mr. Darrow's brother, Pierce Wordsworth Darrow, Middlebury 1911, died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., in September. The deceased entered college in 1907, having prepared in Chester, Vt. High School and four years later graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. During his lifetime he was connected with the International Banking Corporation and spent many years in travel.

The latest addition to the class of 1924 is Joseph D. Laird of Montpelier, Vt. Mr. Laird is a brother of the man who gained such prominence in intercollegiate circles last year while playing with the Colgate University football eleven, and he reported for his first practice with the Middlebury squad Monday afternoon.

SEASON TAX FAVORED BY MEN

$210 For Basketball Pledged at Undergraduate Meeting

Must Raise $400 More—Canvass to be Made This Week

Exclusive student support of 'Varsity basketball for the coming season was practically assured at last night's meeting of the Undergraduate Association when one hundred and five two-dollar subscriptions of the three hundred necessary were pledged from the attending body. This action culminated an hour's discussion of athletic finances in which Professor P. N. Swett of the Athletic Council, Manager William Cohen and members of the association participated. The ultimate decision of the fate of basketball as a 'Varsity sport will rest with the results of a canvass for similar subscriptions which is to be made throughout the entire college during the coming week.

Athletics formed the background for the evening's transactions. Speaking as the Athletic Council's representative Professor Swett explained this body's endorsement of the plan for student support of basketball as its only alternative following the Board of Trustees' recommendation that it be dropped. Despite a substantial enlargement of the annual athletic appropriation he pointed out that most of this fund had already been directed toward football and baseball in accordance with the advice of the Board of Trustees, with a necesstry limitation of the amount available for track purposes and a total exclusion of basketball. He cleared up a general misunderstanding among students of the purposes of the Hepburn Athletic Fund by informing them that the income from it was to be devoted entirely to the engaging of coaches for football and baseball teams. Of the $4000 for general athletic up-keep appropriated by the Trustees in June he stated that $1500 had already been consumed in the cancelling of debts carried over from former years.

A scheme for changing the regulation regarding the award of 'Varsity insignia which would dispose of the existing half-season rule and limit qualification to participation in the Vermont game was suggested by Head Coach A. M. Brown but action upon it was deferred until a later meeting pending consideration by the Athletic Council.

In the election of a successor to George Miske '21 non-returned, who was last spring elected student member of the Advisory Committee on Athletic Finances, W. S. Heath '21 won by a margin of twenty-one votes over R. S. Noonan '21. An appropriation of $50 for the Alumni-Undergraduate Banquet November 12, was voted by the association.

Women's Athletic Council Meets

At a meeting of the Women's Athletic Council Monday afternoon the question of points for last year's track meet and plans for raising money for the Association, were discussed. After the general discussion, the committees adjourned to choose the all-Middlebury teams in baseball and volley ball. The teams chosen are as follows

Baseball: Porter, Robbins, Finnegan, Mackay, Putnam, Crathern, Aldrich, McNulty and Dickinson.

Volley ball: Frost, Hobbs, Mackay, Crathern, Kienle, Sibley and Putnam.

Nominations were made for the heads of sports, and these nominations will be voted on at the general meeting of the Women's Athletic Association which is to be held tomorrow.

PRES. THOMAS APPOINTED TO COLLEGE COMMISSION

One of Three Chosen to Study Educational Conditions Throughout U. S.

The appointment has been announced of President John M. Thomas of Middlebury College as chairman of a commission to study the distribution of colleges with a view to determining what points of the country are least favored, and, what, if any parts of the country have more facilities than are immediately desirable. The commission has been created at the direction of the American Association of Colleges and the problem on which it is working is an important one in the educational world. The other members of the commission are President Hughes of Miami and President McConaughy of Knox College. It is expected that the General Education Board, the Carnegie Foundation, and the Interchurch World Movement will cooperate in the investigation. President Thomas, who spoke at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., Sunday attended the first meeting of the commission in New York City before his return to Middlebury. The commission will make its report in January at the annual meeting of the Associations of American Colleges.

BLUE IN LINE FOR STATE TITLE

Brown Finds Encouragement in Comparative Scores

Norwich and U. V. M. Have Lost to Other Teams by Big Margins

BY L. H. BROWN

U. V. M. by her victory over Tufts Saturday caused some surprise although Tufts is weaker than usual this year due to the recently installed one year residence rule for athletes. The chief weakness of the Burlington eleven lay in its numerous fumbles and the inability of the backfield with the exception of Johnson to gain much ground. This victory and the opening win over St. Lawrence hardly offset the drubbing administered by Syracuse a week ago.

Norwich played its second game at Troy and defeated R. P. I. showing more stuff than was demonstrated in the Dartmouth defeat. The chief weakness lay in the line Saturday and R. P. I. outplayed the Cadets in this part of the game completely. This gives one defeat and one victory to Norwich.

Middlebury's scoreless tie with Springfield even overshadows the opening win at Union and the game at West Point Saturday shows a better score than either U. V. M. in its Syracuse contest or Norwich in its Dartmouth battle were able to exhibit. Its early to judge yet but it looks to date as if the Blue eleven was due for another State Championship this fall.

Delta Delta Delta Tea

A tea was given by Alpha Iota of Delta Delta Delta yesterday afternoon in Pearsons social hall. The affair was in honor of Miss Marjorie J. Wilson of Beta chapter who, as visiting chapter delegate, represents the Vocational Bureau of the fraternity.

In the receiving line were Miss Wilson, Miss Ross, Mrs. Thomas, Miss Wood, Miss Graham and Janet Taylor '21. Mrs. Burrage and Mrs. Perkins poured. Ladies of the faculty and members of the three upper classes were guests. The hall was decorated with pine, autumn leaves, and flowers. Music was furnished by Mr. Bishop '22 and Mr. Fitzpatrick '22.

Y. W. C. A. Meeting

The Y. W. C. A. meeting last evening was in charge of Miss Marjorie J. Wilson, who is an authority in regard to the vocational field for women. The subject was "Opportunities for College Women."

During the war Miss Wilson was actively engaged in Y. W. C. A. work in New York City.

A unique meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held last Thursday evening. In place of the usual meeting, the hour was spent in singing Middlebury songs in order that the freshmen might learn them, in preparation for the trip to Bread Loaf. The next meeting of the organization will be in charge of a vocational expert.

PERSONAL

Herbert W. Denio class of 1888 resigned from the Huntington private library of New York last July and is now in the Book & Print Department of the American Art Association of the same city, at 6 East 23d street.

TWO UPPER CLASSES ELECT OFFICERS

J. W. Mead '21 and C. C. Baldwin '22 to Head Respective Classes

At the first meeting of the senior class Thursday noon in the Hemicycle John W. Mead, captain of the 'Varsity eleven and a letter man in baseball, was elected president; Lilian Deans, vice-president; Kathryn Mara, secretary; and William M. Meacham, treasurer.

Besides holding the distinction of being a prominent athlete Mead was a member of the successful Junior Play cast of "A Night Off", last spring. Miss Deans also played in "A Night Off."

A report submitted by Manager William Cohen of the 1921 Kaleidoscope was accepted.

Junior Elections

Charles C. Baldwin and Miss Edith P. Sibley were chosen president and vice-president, respectively, of the junior class at a meeting yesterday noon in Hemicycle. The other officers elected were Miss Ruth L. McArthur, secretary, and Albert F. Gollnick, treasurer.

Both men have been prominent in class and college activities during their two years at Middlebury. Baldwin is a letter man in track and was chairman of the Sophomore Hop Committee last fall. Gollnick has been a member of the 'Varsity track squad for two seasons and is now playing his second year at fullback on the first eleven.

The Vesper Service

The speaker at the vesper service Sunday, October 10, was the Rev. Donald Fraser of Wells River, Vermont. His sermon on "The Grip of God" showed an unusual trend of thought. He said that if man could make a past and a present, God would take care of the future. Even if a prayer goes unanswered the very act of communion with God gives renewed strength. The grip of God is felt through the Bible and is interpreted in His words.

an unobstructed view of the country for miles around, most of which is owned by the College. On the return many hikers visited Lake Pleiad and the Lodge, one-half mile to the south and reached by the Long Trail which traverses the entire Green Mountain range. The round trip totalled nine miles.

The exodus of pedestrians in the direction of Middlebury which began during the forenoon continued throughout the day. Trucks, automobiles and other means of conveyance were pressed into the service of transporting baggage, food supplies and members of the camping party. Certain members of the expedition remained at the Inn and at the Lake Pleiad Lodge overnight returning to Middlebury the following day. A late lunch was served at seven o'clock Saturday evening in each of the three college-operated dining halls.

The sole mishap of any consequence occurred late Saturday afternoon when a large passenger-carrying auto-truck, the property of a downtown garage, slid into the ditch on a narrow section of the road above East Middlebury while making its last trip down the mountain. The occupants of the vehicle were speedily transferred to passing cars and the truck was soon hauled back into the highway.

PRESS CLUB GETS FRESH START

Plans for Year Formulated at First Meeting; Twenty Students Attend

Plans for the reorganization of the Press Club were formulated at its first meeting of the vear, Wednesday, October 6, in the Old Chapel. The meeting, which was in charge of Professor W. E. Davison, was held primarily to ascertain the scope of the work for the current year. Methods of establishing regular news bureaus in the various centers were discussed. A general outline of the means employed in distributing local news items to the papers was presented. Announcement was made that the members of the club would be addressed by experts on news writing, in cooperation with the college authorities. Over twenty students have already volunteered to assist in the work of the Club.

PROF. DE VISME GRANTED HIGH FRENCH HONOR

many of the oldest families of France.

In 1914 he accepted an offer of President Thomas to become director of the French School of the Summer Session at Middlebury. He has since developed the vacation school to its present superior ranking with all other institutions of similar aims in the United States. Last year when it became apparent that there was a need for further extension of this institution's work in modern language teaching Professor de Visme was engaged as permanent instructor and as director of the French Graduate school.

In 1906 Professor de Visme married Mlle. Alice Azeline de Visme in Paris. They have two sons, Rene and Eric who are with them. Professor de Visme is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and was honored last June by election to the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, initiation to take place at the mid-winter ceremonies.

Betsey Buttles Tea House

You've murmured under moon and stars
In brambly wildernesses
And lingered by the pasture bars
And loitered over grasses
And back again you've had to go
By coach, and stage and flivver
But you may dry your tears of woe
For we go on forever.
